Eric McCormack
Voice of “Lucky” in “Pound Puppies”

@EricMcCormack

Emmy[®] Award-winning actor Eric McCormack stars as “Lucky,” the cool and clever leader of the gang of heartwarming animal shelter dogs dedicated to finding loving homes for their fellow pets, in “Pound Puppies” on the Hub Network. “Pound Puppies” is executive produced by Bart Jennett, Chris Bartleman, Kirsten Newlands and Stephen Davis and is from Hasbro Studios.

McCormack starred as “Will Truman” on NBC’s Emmy[®] Award-winning sitcom “Will & Grace” for which he won an Emmy[®] Award for Lead Actor in a Comedy Series and a Screen Actors Guild Award[®] for Outstanding Performance by an Ensemble in a Comedy Series, as well as received five Golden Globe[®] nominations.

Over the past 20 years, McCormack has starred in countless television series, mini-series and movies. He currently stars and serves as producer on the TNT drama “Perception.” His other television credits include “The Andromeda Strain,” “Borrowed Hearts,” “Trust Me,” the title role in “Who Is Clark Rockefeller?,” “The New Adventures of Old Christine” and two seasons as “Col. Clay Mosby” on “Lonesome Dove: The Outlaw Years.”

McCormack’s film work includes “Alien Trespass,” the cult film “Free Enterprise,” “My One and Only” opposite Renée Zellweger, and “The Sisters,” for which he and Maria Bello won Best Actor and Actress at the Atlanta Film Festival. McCormack recently starred in “Barricade” and “Knife Fight,” opposite Rob Lowe.

McCormack has starred on Broadway in “The Music Man,” and in the American premiere of Neil LaBute’s Off-Broadway production “Some Girl(s).” In spring 2012, he returned to New York to star opposite James Earl Jones and Angela Lansbury in Gore Vidal’s “The Best Man.”

Hailing from Toronto, McCormack currently splits his time between Los Angeles and Vancouver, Canada with his wife Janet and son Finnigan.
