

Sergeant Dan Christensen
Detachment 14

For Sergeant Dan Christensen, a career in law enforcement runs in the family. His father was an undersheriff in Kittas County, Washington, and Sergeant Christensen followed in his father's footsteps as a military police officer and sheriff before joining the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife (WDFW).

Sergeant Christensen treasures and protects the natural beauty and wildlife of Washington State. He appreciates a job where he's policing criminals and safeguarding wildlife at the same time.

As a supervisor, Sergeant Christensen enjoys educating the public and training officers in his detachment. And because he is one of only a few WDFW officers in Okanagan, the largest county in Washington State, he never faces a dull moment.
