

PALM SPRINGS HUSBAND-WIFE HOME RENO TEAM RETURNS TO HGTV FOR SEASON TWO OF 'DESERT FLIPPERS'

New York [June 19, 2017] Real estate and house-flipping experts Eric and Lindsey Bennett are back with more So-Cal home renovations in the new season of HGTV's Desert Flippers. Premiering on Thursday, July 20, at 11 p.m. ET/PT, the 10-episode season follows real estate agent Eric and designer Lindsey as they face triple-digit heat and harsh landscapes to renovate dilapidated homes and sell them for top dollar—all while raising three small children.

“We search for properties that have amazing potential,” said Lindsey. “We dress them up with great curb appeal, high-end finishes and the beautiful pools that Palm Springs buyers want.”

In the premiere episode, Eric and Lindsey, along with Lindsey’s contractor brother, “Uncle Mike” Schneider, tackle a 2,000-square-foot home that has been on the market for months. The home is riddled with issues, including a dysfunctional layout, a rodent infestation and a backyard that is adjacent to a busy street with lots of road noise. Eric and Lindsey create a lush retreat that features an open concept, dramatic master suite and gorgeous backyard pool, palm trees and patio space perfect for entertaining.

“Most of our clients move to Palm Springs to get away from the big city and live in a place where they can truly relax,” said Eric. “We know how to create the perfect desert-style oasis that they come here to find.”
