‘FIXER UPPER’ PHENOMENON RETURNS TO HGTV
ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 29, AT 9 P.M. ET/PT

Chip and Joanna Gaines’ Home Renovation Adventures Continue in Season Four

New York [Immediate For Release – November 3, 2016] HGTV’s blockbuster series Fixer Upper, starring home renovation power couple and national media darlings Chip and Joanna Gaines, will return for a fourth season on Tuesday, November 29, at 9 p.m. ET/PT. The smash hit is one of the highest-rated series in HGTV’s history, attracting more than 25 million viewers and legions of celebrity fans during its last season. Fresh episodes will feature the Gaines as they complete stunning renovation projects in Waco, while parenting their four kids, running a 40-acre farm with cows, goats, horses and chickens, and managing their family businesses.

Filled with Chip and Jo’s playful banter, hilarious hijinks and southern charm, the new season will feature more families who look to the Gaines for help evaluating and transforming a fixer upper into the home of their dreams. The Gaines also will revisit their early days of buying and flipping homes when they take on the renovation of their very own “flipper upper.”

“This is what we did for a living when we met,” said Chip. “Flipping this house is reminiscent of our beginnings.”

During the season, the Gaines also will transform an extra building on their property into a bakery. The renovation will be featured in a special episode of Fixer Upper premiering on Valentine’s Day at 9 p.m. ET/PT.

“For me and Chip, we love to see all of our work come together,” said Joanna. “We want each space to really feel like home.”
