

CARPENTER JEFF DEVLIN RESTORES HISTORIC HOMES TO THEIR ORIGINAL CHARM IN NEW SEASON OF DIY NETWORK'S 'STONE HOUSE REVIVAL' PREMIERING APRIL 18

New York [March 13, 2018] Popular licensed contractor and carpenter Jeff Devlin, star of DIY Network's Stone House Revival, will refurbish more centuries-old homes in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, when the series returns on Wednesday, April 18, at 9 p.m. ET/PT. The new 14-episode season will showcase Jeff as he tackles dilapidated exteriors, dated interiors and adds modern amenities to transform some of the nation's oldest houses one stone at a time.

"These homes were built 200 years ago," said Jeff. "That's what's beautiful about these renovations. We can find inspiration from what's already been done."

In the premiere episode, Jeff and his team of restoration experts will reveal the historic charm of a home built in 1782. To address the property's modern kitchen that doesn't match the rest of the house, Jeff will add a custom-made reclaimed wood island to infuse a rustic feel to the space.
