INTERIOR DESIGNERS AND MARRIED DADS NATE BERKUS AND JEREMIAH BRENT DELIVER ELEVATED PERSONALIZED DESIGNS FOR FAMILIES IN NEW SEASON OF HGTV'S 'THE NATE & JEREMIAH HOME PROJECT'

WHAT: *The Nate and Jeremiah Home Project*

WHERE/WHEN: Premieres Wednesday, Feb. 22, at 9 p.m. ET/PT on HGTV and available to stream on discovery+.

WHO: The popular HGTV design docu-series, *The Nate and Jeremiah Home Project*, stars married interior designers and dads of two, Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent. The series, which attracted 13.4 million viewers during its freshman season, follows the couple as they help overwhelmed families sort keepsakes from clutter to get a fresh start. Inspired by the sentimental pieces, Nate and Jeremiah employ their design expertise to transform these spaces into dream homes that truly reflect the people that live in them.

In the premiere episode, the design duo meet new clients Mike and Lisa, who live with their four kids in a cherished – but cramped – home in East Rockaway, New York. With a limited budget, the duo must work within the existing floor plan to give the family of six a functional home with dedicated spaces for the kids and parents. After a massive edit of their old belongings, Nate and Jeremiah help the homeowners determine which items matter most, including the kids' artwork, a special bookcase handmade by Lisa's dad and an heirloom curio cabinet, as they plan the full overhaul of the kitchen, dining room and basement. In the end, Nate and Jeremiah deliver a stunning and personalized renovation that embodies their top design principle: to create beautiful homes that tell a family's personal story.

The Nate & Jeremiah Home Project is produced by Scott Brothers Entertainment with Drew Scott and Jonathan Scott as executive producers.
