GALAXY'S QUEST: ON OCTOBER 11, CAT DADDY JACKSON GALAXY RETURNS TO RESCUE FRANTIC FELINES AND THEIR GUARDIANS

-- All-new Episodes Take Galaxy Back to Austin, Los Angeles and San Diego --

(Silver Spring, Md.) – In the previous season of MY CAT FROM HELL, Jackson Galaxy came face to face with the infamous '911 Cat,' which he dubbed the toughest case of his long career. But, if you thought his work saving cats and their guardians was over, think again. Beginning Saturday, October 11, at 8 PM (ET/PT), Galaxy returns in seven all-new episodes to rescue out-of-control cats and repair the relationships they're ruining.

This season, Galaxy returns to familiar territory but with new cases in Austin, Los Angeles and San Diego. Even though Galaxy has experience working in these cities, it won't give him any advantage with this season's frantic felines. Galaxy gets whisker to whisker with the cats on their turf, and things get mighty catty: a bloodthirsty cat in Austin attacks its guardian's clients and threatens her at-home business; a urine-crazed feline in LA forces her owners to wear facemasks to avoid the pungent smell; and for the first time, Galaxy encounters a cat that may not fall for his trademark slow blink technique that thus far has tamed the most ferocious felines.

Galaxy has a few other tricks up his sleeves and is armed with his proven training program and cat mojo to tackle these hellish felines. Galaxy aims to correct cat behavior and improve kitty-owner relationships... and sometimes, it's not just the cats that need Galaxy's magic touch!

MY CAT FROM HELL is produced for Animal Planet by Eyeworks USA. Melinda Toporoff is the executive producer and Pat Dempsey is the associate producer for Animal Planet. JD Roth, Todd A. Nelson, Adam Kaloustian and Chandrea Miller are executive producers for Eyeworks USA.
