FASHION OFFENDERS ARE JUDGED FOR THEIR CLOTHING CRIMES IN NEW TLC SERIES STYLE BY JURY

The courtroom opens February 13

When it comes to fashion, sometimes there are bad choices and an occasional infraction, and then there are the repeat offenders. Now, they'll have to face the consequences in TLC's new series STYLE BY JURY. Hosted by style experts Louise Roe and Preston Konrad, the new series premieres Friday, February 13 at 9:30PM ET/PT.

Each episode of STYLE BY JURY features fashion felons accused of committing some of the most terrible "style crimes" as they are put on trial. But this is no ordinary courtroom; they will be secretly critiqued behind a two-way mirror by a jury of their peers, and confronted with what kind of first impression their physical appearance is making to the outside world. The verdict may not be pretty, and each offender will be sentenced to undergo a dramatic makeover transformation to help bring their inner confidence and beauty out for the world to see.

In addition to learning new styling techniques, fashion offenders will undergo hair and makeup improvements to help enhance their dramatic transformations. As the makeover process comes to an end, the fashion offender faces an all new jury and is given a second chance to make a first impression.

TLC's newest dynamic duo strives to help women find new and improved versions of themselves, inside and out. The network has ordered six half-hour episodes.

STYLE BY JURY is produced by multimedia studio Electus in association with Planetnetworks for TLC. More information can be found at TLC.com/stylebyjury. Follow TLC @TLC with the hashtag #stylebyjury.
